

Anti-terrorism/Force Protection Level I Refresher Training

The AT/FP training will be held at The Landing. Airmen should leave their Mission Oriented Protective Posture (MOPP) gear in their vehicles. Airmen can park close by and walk to The Landing.

These are several of the instructors for the course (left to right).

Tony Boyce, 27th Fighter Wing anti-terrorism office
Master Sgt. Glenn Ravan, 372 Training Squadron
Staff Sgt. Stephen Jones, 27th Comptroller Squadron
Donald Mills, 27th Security Forces Squadron

Self-Aid Buddy Care

The SABC training will be held at the base theater, with hands-on training in the parking lot. Airmen should leave their MOPP gear in their vehicles. There will be limited parking in the area where Airmen can park and walk to the theater.

These are several of the instructors for the course (left to right).

Maj. Kevin Bizer, 27th Medical Group
Master Sgt. Eugene Presciti, 27th Medical Operations Squadron
Master Sgt. Timothy Wigmore, 27th Medical Support Squadron
Tech. Sgt. Gene McCants, 27th Medical Operations Squadron

Convoy Training

The convoy training will be held in Hangar 109. Airmen should arrive wearing MOPP 0 and be prepared for MOPP 4. There will be limited parking in the area where Airmen can park and walk to the hangar.

These are several of the instructors for the course (left to right).

1st Lt. Jonathon Murray, 27th Security Forces Squadron
Master Sgt. Michael Hinckley, 27th Logistics Readiness Squadron
Tech. Sgt. Robert Soule, 27th Logistics Readiness Squadron
Senior Airman Scott May, 27th Logistics Readiness Squadron

Warrior Week keeps Cannon mission ready

Get ready Cannon—next week is Warrior Week! Readiness is our top priority and we'll focus on training exclusively. Everyone needs to be ready, not just those currently projected to deploy in an upcoming AEF bucket — our nation may need more of us to serve abroad in combating terrorism. So, next week is a good opportunity to prepare for combat situations and reinforce the training we've already had.

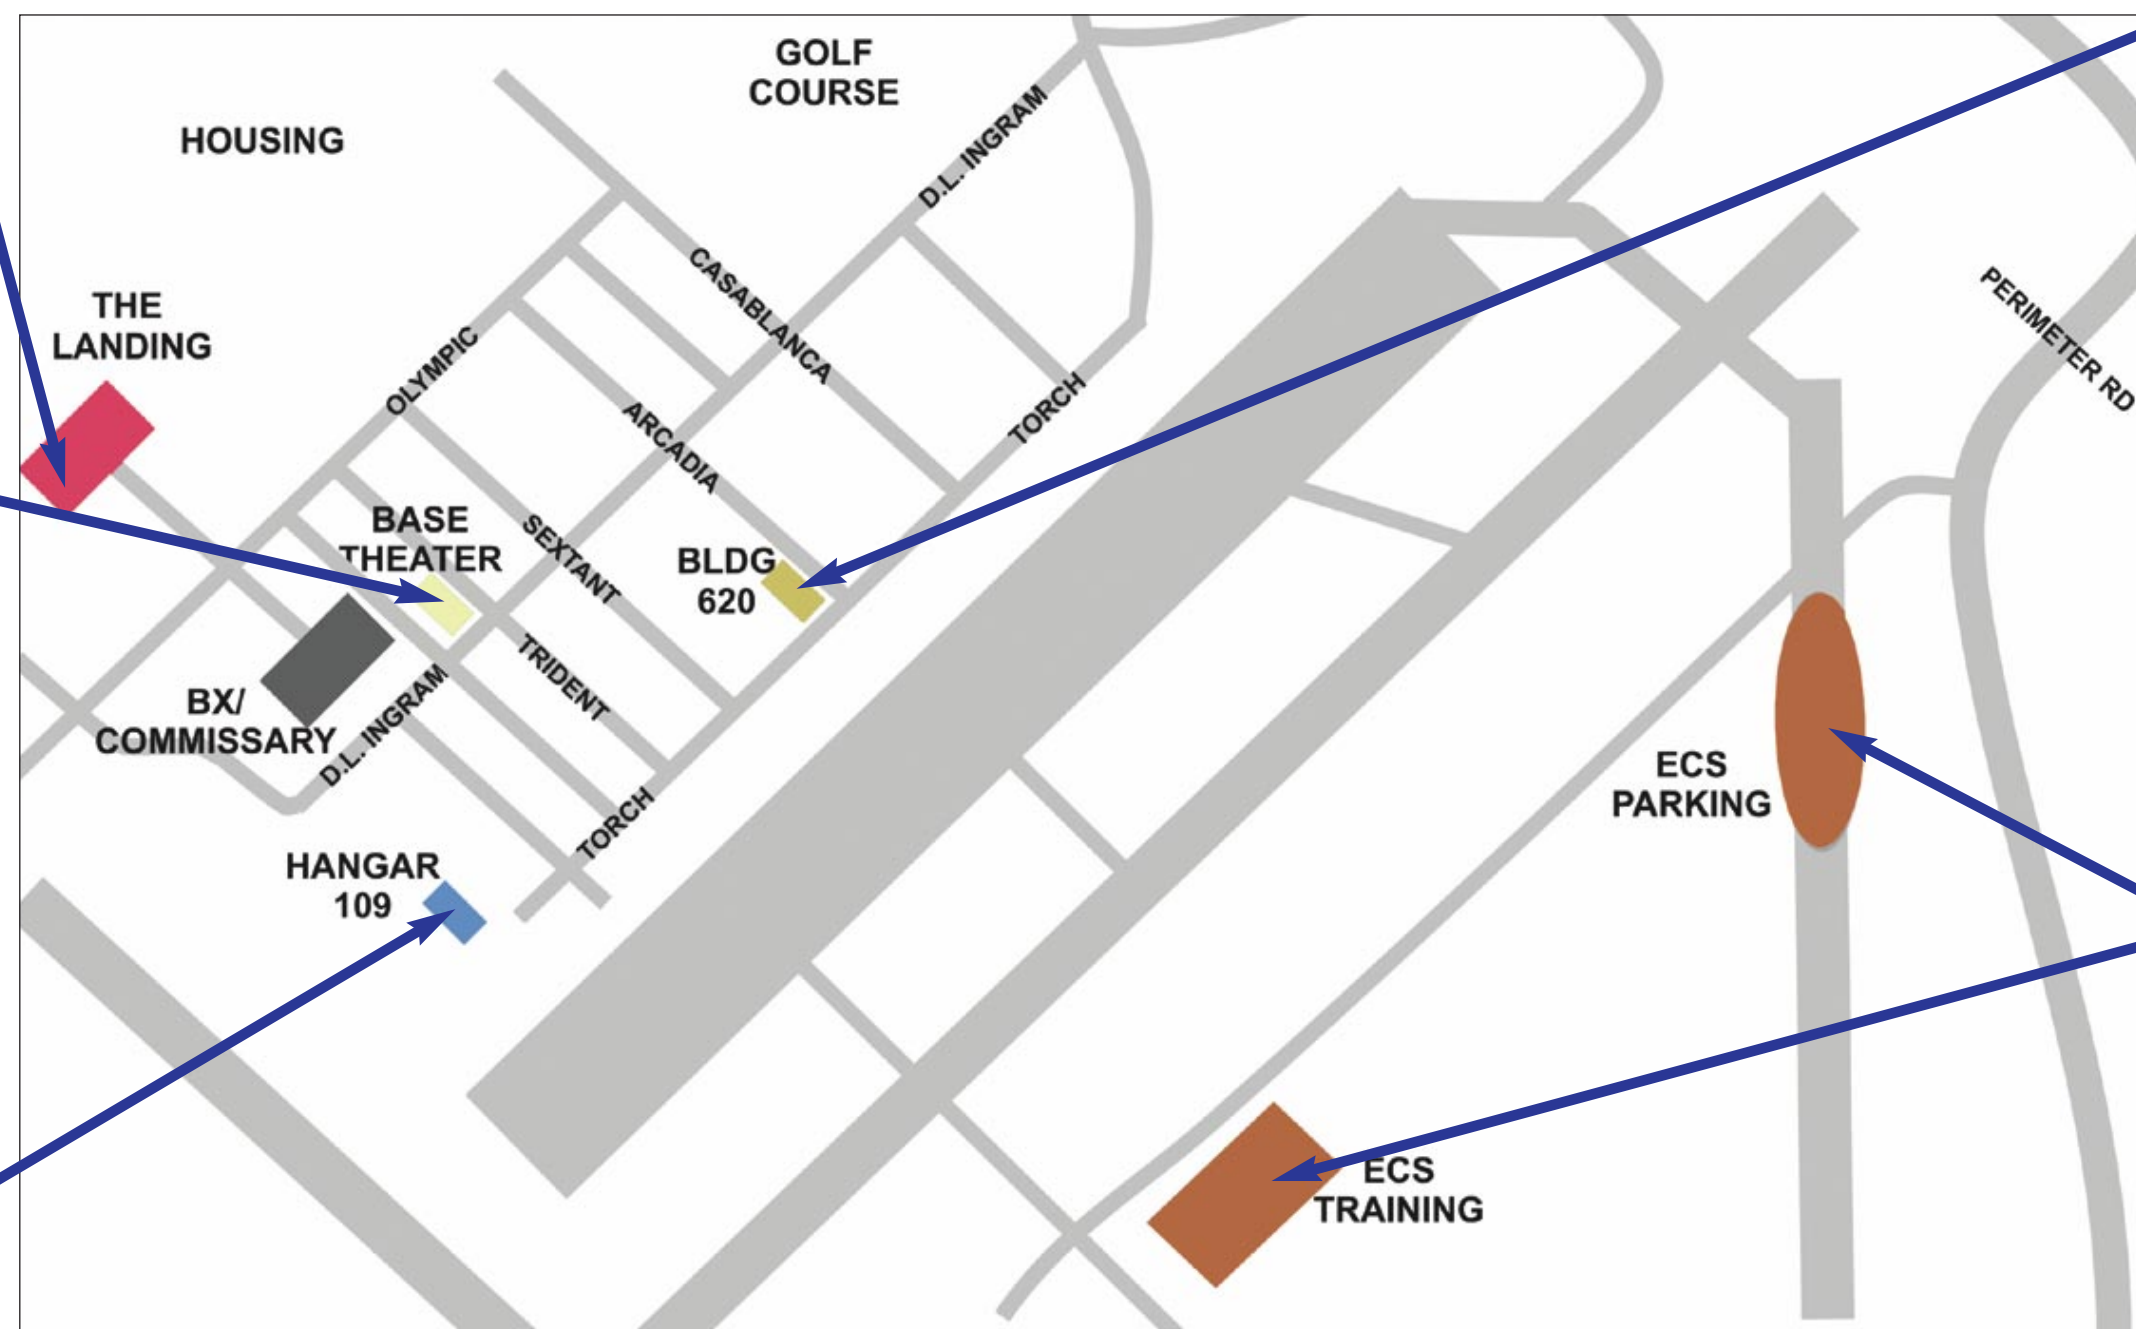

Take a moment to familiarize yourself with the different training locations, topics and instructors. The Airmen pictured are just some of the many experienced instructors you'll be learning from.

Warrior Week will start Monday and provide training in Expeditionary Combat Skills to include weapons issue and turn-in procedures, body armor procedures, M-16 maintenance, rules regarding use of force, individual movement, cover and concealment, reaction to direct and indirect fire, and rifle fighting. Chemical Biological Radiological and Nuclear Defense, Anti-Terrorism and Force Protection, Self Aid Buddy Care, and Convoy Academics will also be a taught.

Squadron supervisors will schedule each individual for training on selected days — the uniform is BDUs/Flight Suits with Field Gear. Every Airman's readiness is vital — you never know when a combat skill might save your life or another's. So, take the training seriously — you can bet our adversaries do.

Col. Scott West
 27th Fighter Wing commander

Remember: field gear must be worn at all times

Chemical, Biological, Radiological and Nuclear Defense Training

The CBRND training will be held in the "carpeted" room of Bldg. 620. Airmen should arrive wearing MOPP 0 and be prepared for MOPP 4. There will be limited parking in the area where Airmen can park and walk to the building.

These are several of the instructors for the course (left to right).

Senior Airman Jacqueline Baker, 27th Civil Engineer Squadron
Senior Airman Brian Lockhart, 27th Civil Engineer Squadron
Senior Airman Amanda Potucek, 27th Civil Engineer Squadron

Senior Airman Jessica Rosales, 27th Civil Engineer Squadron
Airman 1st Class Richard Delong, 27th Civil Engineer Squadron
Airman Sha-hannah Rivera, 27th Civil Engineer Squadron

Expeditionary Combat Skills Training

The ECS training will be held at the cantonment area. Airmen should leave their MOPP gear in their vehicles. A full canteen or camelback, cold/wet gear, gloves, elbow and knee pads are recommended.

Airmen must park on the abandoned airfield and ride the bus.

Classes will not be released for lunch. The 27th Services Squadron will provide meals for $3.55. Airmen are asked to use their meal cards or exact change.

These are several of the instructors for the courses (left to right).

Tech. Sgt. Richard Jones, 27th Security Forces Squadron
 Cover, Concealment and Defensive Fighting Positions
Staff Sgt. Alan Clontz, 27th Security Forces Squadron
 Reaction to Adversary and Indirect Fire
Senior Airman Brian Flanagan, 27th Security Forces Squadron
 Reaction to Adversary and Indirect Fire
Gary Rhode, 27th Security Forces Squadron
 Integrated Base Defense

